DETAILED ACTION

Specification

1. The specification is objected to as failing to provide proper antecedent basis for the claimed subject matter. See 37 CFR 1.75(d)(1) and MPEP § 608.01(o). Correction of the following is required: The subject matter "the installation of the fluid purification in an HVAC system" as claimed in claim 9 needs proper antecedent basis in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102 and § 103

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 2 and 6-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being clearly anticipated by Reisfeld et al. (US 6,716,406 B2). Reisfeld's invention is directed to a control system for a photocatalytic air purifier. Reisfeld discloses that the photocatalytic air purifier comprises the recited fluid handling component, substrate, catalyst and UV light source (Fig. 1 and col. 3, lines 27-32).

5. Claims 3-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Reisfeld '406 in view of Lentz et al. (US 6,438,971 B1) and either Yamanaka et al. (US 5,919,422) or Goswami (US 5,835,840). The difference between Reisfeld and the instant claims are the provision of the UV light source between the fluid handling component and the substrate. Lentz shows in a photocatalytic air treatment the placement of the light source either downstream or upstream of the evaporator coil (col. 5, lines 34-45). Yamanaka shows in a photocatalytic air treatment the provision of the photocatalyst downstream from the evaporator and the UV light source in between the evaporator and the photocatalyst (Fig.10). Goswami shows in a photocatalytic system for indoor air quality the provision of a photocatalyst downstream from an evaporator and the UV light source in between the evaporator and the photocatalyst (Figs. 1 and 3-5). The subject matter as a whole would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have modified Reinsfeld as shown by Lentz and either Yamanaka or Goswami because rearrangement of parts was held to have been obvious, In re Japikse 86 USPQ 70. Further, it has been held that the motivation to make a specific structure is always related to the properties or uses one skilled in the art would expect the structure to have, In re Newell 13 USPQ 2d 1248, Fromson v. Advance Offset Plate 225 USPQ 26; In re Gyurik 201 USPQ 552.
